High School Announcement.

The Morgan County High School will meet for the opening session Monday, August 20th, at 8:00 o'clock. After organizing, the school will adjourn until Monday, September 5th when regular work will begin. All pupils near West Liberty are expected to be present for enrollment, for assignment of work and to receive instructions regarding text books needed. Pupils living at a distance will not be required to report until September 5th.

The prospect for this year's session is very promising. Enrollment last year reached 325. We hope to pass that mark this year. Pupils throughout the country who expect to enter High School during the year, should try to start in September. They will find this a great advantage.

Patrons and teachers are invited to be present as this is also the week of Teacher's Institute.

S. H. MCGUIRE,
Principal.

Marvin Hill, traveling salesman for Crump & Fields, of Ashland, was in town Wednesday and Thursday talking groceries to our merchants.

H. D. and Shaffer of Roynton, and Roy Back, of Cuckland, were visiting Gardner Spurr's several days last week.

Circuit Court.

The second week of Circuit Court is under way and this has been one of the best terms for the suppression of crime that we have had in years.

The grand jury is making a large number of indictments and in cases for liquor selling the indicted persons are arrested and tried at this term. A number have been tried and fined and as fast as the grand jury finds an indictment for liquor selling a bench warrant is issued and the party arrested and brought for trial.

The cases that were made last court are being tried and the fines assessed are heavy, especially for drunkenness and liquor selling.

This court is proving that all the propaganda that was circulated previous to the primary was mere political buncombe, for never in the history of the county has so many fines been assessed nor as many indictments made. Most of the fellows who were indicted for drunkenness are glad to submit the law and fines and pay $25.00 and the costs and in addition tell the grand jury where they bought the liquor.

There was practically no evidence of drinking at this term of the court and the primary had almost no evidence of the drinking of liquor. That Judge Gardner and Mr. Arnett and the other officials have gotten the liquor traffic on the run is evident to even those who were so loud in their denunciation before the primary, and it is being admitted on every side that the law is being rigidly enforced and that the situation is well under control.

The Courier will give a full account of the court proceedings in next issue.

FLAT WOODS.

Montie Frisby, who has been working at Hardbury, has returned home. He is now working in his machine and made his mother a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Delhays were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henry Sunday.

Miss Beulah Whit, who is teaching the Carter school, is ill at present.

Misses Leula McKinney and Madeline McGuire attended the burial of Annas Wells, at Licking River Sunday. Quite a large crowd from this place attended the meeting at Miss Sunday.

Mrs. T. H. Henry and little son Harold, were the guests of Mrs. E. A. Henry the first of the week.

We want to congratulate the will be County Attorney on his success.

Say people if you want to get rid of the "blues" just read the "Licking Valley Courier." For it is sure a good remedy. We wish it could come twice a week instead of once.

GOO GOO EYES.

Miss Christine Swetnam, of Louisville, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. G. Oakley, for several days this week.

Rev. D. W. Perkins, of Cannel City, was in town Tuesday and paid the Courier office a pleasant call.

Uncle Walt's Story.

PLEASURE OF GIVING.

"SKIMBACK, the banker, is acquiring quite a reputation as a philanthropist," observed the druggist. "He's always giving to somebody or something, and I notice that the sickening details always get into print. He believes in keeping his left hand posted as to what his right hand is doing, and nobody ever will see him concealing any of his lights under a bushel."

"I'm sorry to hear you refer to that great and good man in mercantile terms," said the village patriarch. "Every day I hear similar remarks concerning him, and I think it a poor appreciation of his generosity. As you say, he's always giving, and it's a small business to look a gift horse in the mouth, as the psalmist says. If he hires a man with a megaphone to announce his benefactions, he isn't hurting anybody."

"Caustic things are said of every philanthropist who manages to get some advertising out of his liberality, but it's my opinion that you'll have to hunt a long time, with a searchlight and a pair of gumshoes, before you find the man who enjoys doing good by stealth. If you do find him, he will prove to be a freak, and it will be your duty to see him returned to the asylum from which he escaped."

"We are all more or less hungry for the approbation of our friends and fellow citizens. And I am glad to see, if we didn't care three whoops what our friends thought of us, we wouldn't paint our houses, or mow our lawns, or trim our whiskers. We wouldn't spend any money for flowers or boiled shirts or any of the things which make life beautiful and attractive. If a man spends a lot of money for a gorgeous lawn, with real trees and expensive flowers, and all sorts of ornaments, he's doing it because he wants to be praised by the people who see it all. You don't see any such lawns in lonesome rural districts. There the front yard always is a calf pasture."

"The farmer reasons that it's no use having a pretty lawn, for there's nobody to admire it. Nobody ever goes past the place except an occasional lightning rod agent or a man who is taking orders for fruit trees."

"Why don't you sneer at the town man who puts so much money into beautiful grounds? It's all a grandstand play. He expects to get advertising out of it, and he does, and he deserves it. We shouldn't criticize any man who is doing good, even if we don't like his methods."

"Some people say that Skimback is trying to atone for all the sinfulness of his past career. It is argued that until recent years he never gave away anything, but was after the dollars by day and night, and didn't care who got hurt so he overtook and captured them. They tell of mortgages he foreclosed, causing unspeakable suffering here and there. He is accused of resorting to every dark trick to increase his hoard. Most of the stories probably are bunk, but what if they are true? Now that he shows signs of repentance in his old age we should encourage him in every possible way, and if he gives a photograph to the high school, or puts up a public drinking fountain in the public square, we should tell him he's everybody's darling, and not dig up a lot of ancient history for his confusion."

"I haven't much money to give away, but when I do happen up to the extent of a dollar or two I like to have an audience. I like to imagine that people are saying, 'What a great-hearted, benevolent old geezer he is!' The other morning a man approached me and asked me to contribute something toward putting a new steeple on the church, and I began to explain that church steeples are out of date, when he interrupted to say that the names of all contributors would be printed in the paper, and then I dug up $5 without further words. And we're all tarred with the same stick, my friends."

Not What She Meant.

Miss De Vere—Yes, he actually said your cheeks were like roses.
Miss Vane (delightedly)—That's saying it on pretty thick.
Miss De Vere—Yes; he remarked about that, too.

Hard to Blend.

Mr. Penwick says that although he would be the last man on earth to criticize any lady of his acquaintance nevertheless he has never met one who could successfully combine the high-school giggle with the middle-aged spread.—Dallas News.

An Expert.

"Are you a skilled chauffeur?"
"Yes, sir! Why, I've been in nine collisions and run over five persons and every time I got away before any body could get my number!"

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We are sending out statements to all of our subscribers who are in arrears for the Courier. We trust that if you receive a statement you will not neglect to promptly remit the small amount you owe. Owing to the change in the business and the arrangements in the deal we will have to depend largely upon the subscription list for running expenses until the advertising and job work receipts accumulate.

The amount you owe on subscription is small, but remember that there are several hundred who owe us and that if each of you think that the little amount you owe will not make much difference it will seriously handicap us for awhile.

Advertising is collected usually only quarterly and it will require some time before we begin to receive a regular income from that source, so that the job printing and subscription will have to carry us through until such time as the advertising accounts have accumulated to a revenue paying condition.

The business is prosperous and the outlook was never more promising, but we need the money due us on subscription at once, and we will greatly appreciate it if you will promptly remit on the receipt of your statement.

DINGUS.

Frank and Lawrence Pelfrey, of Dingus, have been discharged from the army and come home.

Drexel, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Patrick, has been seriously ill the past week, but is some better.

Messlames Ed Baker and Ed. C. Williams, of Dingus, and Mrs. W. O. Pelfrey, of Jephtha, who have been on the sick list, are convalescing.

Union church has chosen M. C. Hallett and Martha Church M. F. Conley, as the delegates to represent the two churches in the Enterprise Association at Hampshire Church, in Geamp county, beginning on Friday before the 4th Saturday in August.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. and J. M. Hallett, of Hillsboro, are visiting relatives here and at Lima.

Uncle Elliot Williams is on an extended visit with relatives at Ashland and other places.

R. B. Bolen, of Ashland, spent a few days with relatives here and returned home last week.

J. H. Bradley made a business trip to Irvine last week.

Asa Cantrell has moved on John Montgomery's place. Mr. Cantrell has built a house on Ambrose Bolen's farm, and they have entered the mercantile business.

Ed Wayne has come home from work at Betsy Lane.

Wellington Fray has entered on his training course at Lexington. He intends to move there this fall.

Andy Smith has built a house on Peter Smith's place, at Jephtha, and has entered the mercantile business.

The funeral of Bill Blankenship will be preached at the Staver Smith Association, the fourth Sunday in September, by Elders Hargis Conley, Charles Wheeler, James Yates and Powell Ferguson. Dinner will be served on the ground.

R. H. FERGUSON.

W. A. Testerman, of Quicksand, who has been visiting relatives at this place, returned to his work this week. Everett Gevedon, of Mt. Sterling, and Carter Lykins, of Ashland, are visiting relatives here and at Cane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McClure and little son, Ford, of Bonnyman, visited their brother, Robert McClure, from Saturday till Monday and attended the quarterly meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McKelney and children, Joseph and Elizabeth, of Morehead, are visiting Mrs. McKelney's sister, Mrs. May McClure, of this place. Forest Williams left last week for Hartford, Ohio, where he has a job. He is greatly missed by the community.

Winford Gevedon, the Rawleigh man, is having erected a stone house for his Rawleigh goods.

Robert V. McClure has been very ill for about a week.

Miss Ada Switzer, of Cincinnati, is visiting her friend, Miss Louisa Hays.

Roddy Lykins, of West Liberty, spent the week end with his cousin, R. B. Whit, Roddy is a very frequent visitor at this place any way.

Miss Lucille Williams, of Salem, spent the week end with Mary and Evadne Ferguson.

Bill Perry, of Jones Creek, was ending on Miss Evelyn Ferguson Sunday. Don't think we'll get much moonshine as usual after court owing to so many indictments being made. But it seems that this hasn't much effect on the people.

BLONDE & BRUNETTE.

Mrs. Eliza Richardson is recovering from a severe attack of appendicitis. Rader Mann and family returned to Middletown, O. Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Stacy returned from Mt. Sterling last week, where they had been visiting relatives and hoped for a complete cure soon.

attending the fair.
Mrs. Fred Cox, of Dehart, visited her parents at this place a few days last week.

Died, August 8, Pearl, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Blair.

Died, August 10, Mrs. Polly Blaser, due to the infirmities of old age.

HOLLIDAY.

Lizzie Adams, aged mother of John and Crayton Adams, of this place, passed away Sunday after a brief illness of a few days. She was a woman who was beloved by all who knew her. She will be missed by her relatives and a host of friends.

Claude Gullett and family, of Gullett, were visiting friends and relatives here Saturday and Sunday.

J. W. Jones went to Hazard one day last week.

T. L. Salyer and Willie Gullett made a business trip to Cane Saturday.

H. H. Holliday made a trip to Cane City Saturday to attend the sale.

G. W. Vance and friends made a trip to Lexington one day last week to see Delay the wife of G. W. Vance, who has been ill for some time. She seems to be no better.

Willie Holliday, of Cane City, paid his father, W. M. Holliday, a visit last week.

Hobart Ridd, of Epsom, passed thru here Saturday.

Arnie Salyer, who has been ill with typhoid for some time, is now improving in health rapidly.

BLUE EYES.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha G. Holbrook was called off Sunday on account of the rain, but will be preached some time between this and November. We would have been glad to have had it preached Sunday, still we are willing for God's will to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Williams, who have been living at Portsmouth, Ohio, have moved into the property of Marvin Hill. Every body greets them with a hearty welcome, for we are certainly glad to have Mr. Williams with us as he is a great minister of the Lord and his help is needed.

Marvin Hill has resigned his position as teacher in the Paint Valley school and accepted a position as traveling salesman for Crump & Fields, Ashland.

Misses Myrtle and Cassie Williams, of Winchester, are visiting Mrs. Day's father, J. R. Day, this week.

Miss Malver Benton visited her aunt Mrs. Harrison Little, of Jackson, a few days last week.

Miss Maggie Singleton is visiting her sister Mrs. Harrison Little, of Jackson, a few days this week. She will go from there with her sister, Mrs. Allen Prater, to Stanford, Conn., whom she will visit and perhaps make her home for awhile.

Mrs. J. L. Arnett is visiting Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Kash, of Frenchburg, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hall, of Stanton, were called here Sunday by the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Adams, she fell Friday, but was thought not to be very serious until death came Sunday A. M. at 7:00 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Conley, were called to Falcon last week by the sickness and death of Dr. A. C. Conley, Conley's 13 year old daughter—who died with typhoid.

Clay Lacy, of West Liberty, was in town the first of the week on business.

Lucian Reid, of West Liberty, was in town Monday evening.

TO OUR READERS.

Our linotype is not working well this week and I will have to have a general overhauling. We will do this as soon as this issue of the paper is off the press and hope to have it in good running order in time to get out next week's issue on time. A few parts are out of adjustment and we will have to try to put it in perfect order. This week we have been so handicapped by its condition that it was almost impossible to get out the paper. The machine is alright, and when in good order is a money saver for us, but we have allowed it to get out of adjustment and can not make any speed with it. We hope to have it in good working order in time to get out next issue of the paper.

New Law Firm.

A new law firm, composed of Everett Mathis and John Henry Williams, has been formed and will shortly announce their business in this paper.

Both these young gentlemen are worthy young men and we bespeak for them a large share of the legal business of this county.

Foundation Completed.

The foundation of the new business block being erected by Judge J. H. Seibelman has been completed and the brick kiln is nearly ready for fire, so that in a short time the work of brick laying will be commenced. This building will be one of the handsomest business buildings in Eastern Kentucky when completed.

INSKO.

Charley Hammonk, of Hazard, purchased Homer Ferguson's farm last week and moved his family here Saturday. We are very glad to have them among us and hope they will like their new home.

Miss Maxine Whit, assistant teacher of the school here, visited homefolk at Cane Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCarty entertained at their home Sunday afternoon the following: Misses Resett, Arnett, Trenna Anderson, Stella Vest and Messrs. George Fluch, Garland Frisby, Sam Anderson, Walter Phillips.

A. M. Harper, of Elliot county, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hammond. Every one seemed to enjoy themselves very much.

Several of the boys from here attended the ice cream supper at Cane City Saturday and all reported a splendid time.

Mrs. W. M. Stamper visited friends and relatives at Malone last week.

Mrs. Edie Lacy is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe McClure, of Grassy Creek.

Messrs. Joe and John Nickel spent a few days last week with their brother, George, at Lemmit. We are very glad that they decided to come back to Adele so soon. Do you mind-and why? That question could be easily answered by the girls at this place.

Dan Perkins, of Stacy Fork, and Press Taulbee, of Salem, were very pleasant visitors here Sunday. There seems to be some attraction here as these young men have been very frequent visitors here for some time.

Miss America May, of Taulbee, who has recently returned from the I. O. O. F. home at Lexington, is visiting friends and relatives here this week.

GWENDOLYN.

CANEY.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Day and family of Winchester, are visiting Mrs. Day's father, J. R. Day, this week.

Miss Malver Benton visited her aunt Mrs. Harrison Little, of Jackson, a few days last week.

Miss Maggie Singleton is visiting her sister Mrs. Harrison Little, of Jackson, a few days this week. She will go from there with her sister, Mrs. Allen Prater, to Stanford, Conn., whom she will visit and perhaps make her home for awhile.

Mrs. J. L. Arnett is visiting Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Kash, of Frenchburg, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hall, of Stanton, were called here Sunday by the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Adams, she fell Friday, but was thought not to be very serious until death came Sunday A. M. at 7:00 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Conley, were called to Falcon last week by the sickness and death of Dr. A. C. Conley, Conley's 13 year old daughter—who died with typhoid.

Mrs. M. Cook is again visiting her husband and son at the Reid Hotel.

Oral Arnett, of Lee City, visited his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie Dykes, Friday.

E. C. Whit, of Caddo, Okla., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Whit.

Whitt Kemplin was a visitor at Bonny Sunday, among friends and relatives.

Miss Reva, the attractive daughter of Elvin Lindon, of Lexington, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Lizzie Dykes.

Chester Williams left last week for Jeff, where he will work awhile.

Clay Lacy, of West Liberty, was in town the first of the week on business.

Big Amount of Fines.

The greatest number of fines ever assessed at a term of Circuit Court here have been made this week. Fines aggregating approximately $2,500 have been assessed and about $1,500 of them have been paid and most of the remainder reprieved. Quite a number have had to go to jail to pay their fines. Most of the convictions were for selling liquor and for drunkenness.

This grand jury has returned more indictments for liquor selling than any previous grand jury and are still in session.

This court has demonstrated what can be done when the public sentiment is aroused. Heretofore it has been difficult to get the citizenship sufficiently interested to do their part, but it seems that the good citizens are at last ready to stand by and help.

R. B. Rankin, county agent, Courtney Arnett, Marvin Carter and Frank Franklin are attending the Agricultural camp at St. Helens this week.

S. H. McGuire left Monday for Fleming to join his wife who has been visiting Miss Edna Lykins there for some days.

Miss Elizabeth Cole returned home from a visit to friends at Ashland Wednesday.

Born, to the wife of Ed Davis, at Forest, on the 13th, a girl.

Frank Steele had the misfortune to break a rib while pruning some trees one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Nickell, of Cane City, were visiting in town one day last week and paid the Courier office a pleasant visit.

Miss Wilma and Nell Nickell returned from a visit with friends at Ashland.

M. K. Reid, of Cane City, was a business visitor in town one day last week and paid the Courier a brief visit.

Miss Resett Arnett, of Adele, and Miss Lela Stacy, of Cane City, spent the week end with Miss Jennie Phillips.

ENDURANCE TEST FOR SADDLE HORSES.

To Be Held Under Supervision of Government Agencies—Five-Day Test Over 300-Mile Course.

Army men and others who are alive to the country's acute under-supply of first class cavalry and general utility horses, as the heritage of them was brought painfully to light during the recent World War, are looking forward to the Endurance Test for saddle horses set for next October.

This test, designed to promote the breeding of more and better work types, and to improve the material available for army purposes, is to be very severe one, conducted by representatives of the War Department, Army Remount Bureau, Department of Agriculture, and the National Endurance Test Club, National Saddle Horse Club, Arabian Horse Club of America, National Steeplechase and Hunt Association and American Hackney Horse Society. Also, the conditions make the Endurance Test of special interest to Kentuckians.

The distance (300 miles cross country) will be traversed sixty miles a day for five consecutive days, regardless of weather, over a course to be selected by the committee in charge. Each horse shall carry no less than 245 pounds, made up, according to the rules governing, of the rider's live weight, plus so much dead weight in equipment.

First prize will be $500, the Mounted Service Cup, Blue Ribbon and the Arabian Horse Club Medal; second prize, $400 and Red Ribbon; third prize, $300 and Yellow Ribbon; fourth prize, $200 and White Ribbon; fifth prize, $150 and Grey Ribbon; sixth prize $100 and Black and White Ribbon. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of 60% for condition of the horse and 40% for speed—a standard that points to the bottom and swiftness of the thoroughbred strain as the one likely to produce the winner.

The War Department is giving the keenest interest to the test, and will further the splendid work of the Army Remount Association and the other patriotic organizations that have undertaken the work of breeding cavalry horses to answer the requirements of the army in times of peace and its imperative demands in war. It is the opinion of experts, based on actual experience during the World War, that thoroughbred blood is necessary to the production of the cavalry mount of requisite speed, courage and endurance. Kentucky, therefore, has a paramount interest, because the fountain-head of the purest thoroughbred strain flows perpetual in this favored land of ours.

A SECRET TREATY.

The Harding administration is negotiating a secret treaty with Germany. Even the Senate is not being enlightened as to the terms. There is much restlessness among the Republican politicians at Washington over the action of the administration, and there are those who feel that the administration is unking a grave mistake. That is on the Republican side. On the Democratic side there is a feeling of wonder and resentment over what seems to be a turning from our Allies in the world war and making overtures to the enemy.

The editor of a German newspaper

In New York, shortly after the election, stated that six million Germans voted for Harding. That is of itself very significant. And the making of a separate treaty with Germany, against the desire of every one-hundred-per-cent American in the country, makes the attitude of the Republican party look bad. The abandonment of the allies with whom we fought to defeat Germany and the entering into a separate treaty with that nation makes it look very much like an alliance with the Huns.

However, if the dearest enemy of the Republican party were controlling its course it could not have suggested a more disastrous course than it is pursuing. It is trying to fast a tariff on most everything that we formerly imported when there is nothing to import from the war-torn countries, making the prices higher to our own people on life necessities. It is taking off the taxes from the ultra rich in the way of excess profits taxes and income taxes and putting the minimum lower on the amount that the moderately prosperous business man and worker must pay. Instead of allowing the big corporations that made billions in excess profits during the war and since pay the war indebtedness the Republicans are trying to shift the burden to the farmer, the small business man and laborer.

But no one who has read the history of the Republican party is surprised at their attitude. The underlying policy of the Republican party is to do all for the big corporations and "big business," regardless of what becomes of the public. For more than two years the Republicans have had control in Congress and in that time they have not offered a single piece of constructive legislation, or suggested any remedy for the conditions confronting the nation.

Millions are out of employment, factories closed, business is stagnant, and the Republicans have not a remedy to offer. The farmer is getting scarcely anything for his products and the consumer is paying high prices for farm products after it leaves the farmer's hands. The Republicans have enacted a tariff law to "protect the farmer." There is little farm products to be imported and the tariff only enables the middleman to squeeze both the farmer and the consumer. To "protect" the consumer a high tariff has been placed upon the goods the poor man uses and already we see an upward tendency in the prices of things we buy—from the manufacturer.

But back to the treaty. If there has been an alliance entered into between this country and Germany by the Republicans it is safe to assume that the representatives of the six million German voters, who have made Harding's election possible, have seen to it that German business interests have not suffered in the trade. That six million votes is still held, like Democles' sword, over the heads of the party that traded with them. They will use it in next election. When parties prejudice fades and the people see that the Senate had used them to help them vent a petty spite against a great statesman there will be such a revulsion of feeling that the political signposts will be relegated to the limbo of oblivion and the name a great statesman will take his rightful place among the really great men of the nation.

Dale, with the story he had just heard. John K. Dale had come originally from West Virginia, and he had dutifully refused, time upon time, to make any investigation of the Moreland end property.

The hillman interrupted young Dale's thinking: "Adille, she's agoin' to have dinner ready p'etty soon. Would ye like to wash, Mr. Dale?"

"Yes," was the answer, and in the tones of Bill Dale's quiet voice there was a shade of meaning that Moreland did not catch. "Yes, I'd like to wash."

CHAPTER II

In the Cup.

Dale found the humble voice of his mountaineer host a home in the fullest sense of the word.

At the mountain inn, he met Mrs. Moreland and the sons of the household, and they were exactly as he had pictured them. Mrs. Moreland was quiet, motherly, always smiling, and straight and real as her husband. The sons, Caleb and Luke, were as much alike as the fingers on your hand; they were tall and broad-shouldered, grey-eyed and brown-haired.

Before sundown Dale had become acquainted with the rest of the Morelands, and he liked them, every one. He was at the cabin of his host's gray old father and mother for a long time. When supper was over John Moreland lighted the big glass lamp in the best room, and the family and their guest gathered there to spend the evening. Then the black moonshiner and his mother came in.

Granny Heck had the sharp features and the stooped, thin figure of a witch. She wore a faded blue bandana about her white head, and she carried a long bickory staff; there, yes, a real stemmed clay pipe in her mouth, and her dark cloak skirt had a tobacco pocket in it.

Her son preceded her into the room. He walked to the center table, faced about, and said with a low and dry sweep of his right hand:

"Bill, old boy, this here's maw. Maw, she tells fortunes."

"So this here," croaked Granny Heck, looking over the brass rims of her spectacles, "is Mr. Bill! Well, well! I jest thought to myself 'at I'd come up and see ye. Mr. Bill, maw tell yore fortune."

She dropped into the rocker that Caleb had placed for her.

"Adille," she said to the smiling Mrs. Moreland, "will ye bring me a cup half full o' coffee gran'maw?"

When the cup came, the fortune-teller took it and shook it and patted it, all the while muttering mysterious words that she had learned from the old Indian, Cherokee Joe, which served her purpose very well.

"I see," she mumbled more or less solemnly, "a pow'ful good-looking gurl in a calico dress, with her hair braided away down her back. A bare-footed gurl, with big, pretty eyes. She's a-stumpin' on a low self, a-peppin' in at you through the laurels, Mr. Bill. This is the past."

"In the future," she went on slowly, "I see this here as plain as daylight through a knothole: a awful big man, with curly black hair and curly black beard, and with eyes like it elfin-bark's; and I see you, top, Mr. Bill, and I see a light, a master light—Lord! he's a horse, what a light! But you'll marry the gurl after all, Mr. Bill."

Dale laughed. The old woman had described Babe Littleford, but who was the "big, dark man"? Some fellow who had lost his heart to the mountain girl, perhaps.

When the Heckes had gone, John Moreland leaned forward and touched his guest on the knee.

"That thin big man mentioned in tellin' yore fortune," he said, "might he been Black Adam Hall, Black Adam, he lives with his pap and mother a few miles up the river. As big as a skinned horse, he is, and plumb ongolly strong. He's been a-roggin' Babe Littleford to marry him for a year or two, and she won't listen to him."

"If ever ye do haf to fight Black Adam," John Moreland went on, "ye want to fight him with a two-year shotgun and backshot. He's the meanest man on earth; snake-broth and pizen vine is religious ashle o' him. But ontel ye begin a-makin' love to Babe Littleford, I reckon the 'oldest danger o' you a-havin' trouble with Black Adam; and you ain't likely, I take it, to make love to Babe."

"But Babe's the best one o' the Littlefords," declared Luke.

John Moreland reached for the leather-bound old family Bible. He opened the Book at random.

"It's about time we was a-goin' to our rest, and we'll go jest as soon as we've had prayers, Mr. Dale."

When half a chapter from St. Matthew had been laboriously but reverently read, the Morelands knelt in their chairs, and so did Bill Dale. John Moreland's bedtime prayer was very simple, and very earnest, and it had in it more of thanksgiving than of supplication. And a part of it certainly was uncommon:

"Bless the stranger with us here to night, and all o' our kinsfolks, and all o' our friends, and our families, the Littlefords—specially the Littlefords Aymon!"

Dale was deeply impressed. He heard Mrs. Moreland dimly when she told him to let her know—she would hear him if he called—if there wasn't enough cover for his bed. Then he found himself alone with the stalwart chief of the Morelands.

He stepped forward and put his hand on the mountaineer's shoulder.

"How a man can go down on his knees and pray for his enemies," John Moreland said, "is truly beyond me. Do you really mean it?"

"I try hard to," Moreland said quickly. "In a-doin' that," he went on, "I go then Littleford one better. Ben Littleford's the best sheep o' the people who lives across the river from us, people we've hated for years and years. Then, he looks fairly prayers, too, every night. He'd ax the blessed o' the Lord on the stranger under his roof, but not on his in-laws, the Morelands. Yes, I try hard to mean it, Bill Dale."

"And that other enemy," murmured Dale—and he wondered why the should bother him so much, why he should feel that vague responsibility about it—"the man who killed yore brother, David."

"I don't never pray fo' him," interrupted the mountaineer, going a little pale. "I hain't that high jaffer. A man don't git so good 'at he axes the Almighty to bless the devil—or the outlaw in the laurels, or the copper-head 'at waits under a bush fo' the parish o' some bare-legged child."

Dale winced, but Moreland didn't notice it. Dale let his hand fall from the other's shoulder. Moreland began to speak again:

"I didn't tell ye afore, Bill Dale. My brother David, he was the hope o' the people. He was better'n the rest o' us. The son big adim o' his life was to educate as all, the benighted. Yes, we're benighted, and we know it. He meant to do it with the coal he'd found. As I've done told ye, we ain't never had the heart to sell the coal. I hope ye'll have a fine rest, Bill Dale. I didn't a-goin' to call ye 'Mister' no more, Bill Dale!"

"Don't!" smilingly said the younger man. "Mister Dale is right, y'know. Good-night, John Moreland!"

Dale removed his shoes and outer clothing, blew out the light, and went to bed in the best room's hand-carved black walnut fourposter.

For a long time he lay there awake, and stared through a little window toward a bright star that burned like a beacon fire about the pine-fringed crest of David Moreland's mountain. He believed he understood now why his father had turned a greenish grey when this coal property was mentioned to him. He believed he understood why his father had flatly refused to investigate this vein. But he was wholly at a loss to account for the use of his own given name instead of Dale.

Looking toward the mountain again, he spoke as though he were talking to David Moreland himself:

"I'll see it through for you, old man. This shall be my country."

Eld. W. L. Gevedon has gone to attend the Ketchikan Association on the Eastern shore of old Virginia and will return via Enterprise Association, which will convene with Hampshire church, in Greenup county, Friday, August 26, 1921.
Married, on the 11th inst, Mr. M. K. Gevedon to Miss Edna M. Russell, at the residence of F. M. Steele, the daughter of Mr. Sam Russell, of Wolfe county, and a fine Christian lady of divi attainments. The groom is a son of W. M. Gevedon, of Nickell, and is held in high esteem by all who know him.
The quarterly meeting at Goodwife's Chapel Sunday was practically a fiasco on account of the continuous rain. Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Day and family, of Winchester, are visiting relatives on Grassy at this time.
Well, the primary is over and we failed to get all that we wanted, but we decided to take just what they gave us and be contented. Hence there is nothing else for us to do, but to support the nominees for I think they are all worthy men.

Uncle Walt's Story
THE MODEL GUEST
"MY COUSIN James is coming to spend a week," announced the landlady, "and I can't say I'm overjoyed. He's the most unsatisfactory visitor I ever saw. You can hardly get a word out of him. He isn't a bit like his brother Jeremlah, who is full of fun, and the best company imaginable."
"Your remarks show how little true greatness is appreciated in a moral family boarding house, where the damages are collected in advance," observed the star boarder. "In my opinion, James is household, with a charming bride to pour the imitation coffee, and a vine and figtree in a jardiniere, I'd send a special delivery letter to James, asking him to come and stay for ten years or more."
"There's something restful and soothing about that gifted man. He never bothers anybody. No one has to waste precious moments entertaining him. It isn't necessary to discuss the weather predictions, or dig up a lot of statistics about the crops. In order to make James have a good time. You don't have to show him the old plush photograph album, and describe the ancestry of the melancholy effigies whose pictures appear therein. Nearly all visitors are horses, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, because they have to be entertained. Somebody has to sit up with them and thrash out last year's gossip. They have no initiative or referendum. They have no resources of their own. In order to have a pleasant visit, they need help."
"Your cousin James is a man after my own heart. I remember his last visit quite well. He came in the evening, and after supper he took a chair on the porch. Knowing he was a guest, I felt it my duty to entertain him in the conventional way. I dragged my chair close up to his and remarked that it was a pleasant evening, but the presence of a cloud bank in the northwest almost convinced me that there would be rain within twelve hours, in which case, I proceeded, there would be much jubilation among the honest old farmers, whose crops were suffering for moisture."
"James listened to my remarks and then looked at me, in a sad, reproachful way, as though he thought I was a shameful thing that imbeciles should be at large, and then he took his chair to the opposite end of the porch without having said a word. I must confess that I felt like a counterfeit knock for a few minutes, but the more I considered the matter, the more I admired and respected that remarkable man."
"He used to go downtown every morning and buy a paper backed novel, or a fiction magazine, and then he'd read it all day, and when he was done with his literature he left it where the boarders could get it. I didn't hear him say ten words during his visit, yet you say, Mrs. Jiggers, that he is an unsatisfactory guest. Elderly landladies, whose intellects have been warped by long years of parsimony, are hard to please."
"Jeremlah, whom you describe as jolly and agreeable, should be suppressed. He has collected all the old cheese stories ever manufactured, and insists upon telling them. He has a horrible habit of making puns, and considers himself a humorist, because of it. You couldn't bribe him to sit down with a book or magazine and behave himself. He has to be entertained every minute of his time, and the only way you can entertain him is by letting him do the entertaining."
"He is a mortal old freak who thinks he is a privileged character, and everybody's pet. The last time he was here he went into my sumptuous apartment and used my razor to shave the southeast quarter section of his countenance. His whiskers are full of barbed wire, and the razor was ruined. When I spoke to him about it he thought it funny. Yet you refer to such a man as an agreeable visitor. I blush for you, Mrs. Jiggers."

In Moderation.
"Would you advise a candidate to stay on his front porch?"
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "but only part of the time; just long enough to take care of his voice and get together a good bunch of speeches for delivery on tour."
W. H. Gross, of Pomp, was in town on business one day last week and called in and subscribed for the Courier.

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.
Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.
Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.
Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.
If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste,
It's Camels for you.
